Tom Moore and Big Cast Appearing in "The Cabaret Singer."

Tom, as the millionaire, envying his friends, the Dentons, their marital happiness, hastily marries a beautiful, but shallow-minded babaret singer. Later he discovers her fickleness, and admires the many good traits of their pretty little maid. In a frightful railroad collision, in which the wife is killed during her trip to the city to the old life, an opportunity is afforded Tom to marry portunity is afforded Tom to marry the very pleasing maid—and they lived happy ever after. AT THE AUDITORIUM.

The new show presented by the Marcus Musical company at this house vesterday was pronounced by those who saw it as even better than the bill presented the first two days of the week. Mike Sacks shows his ability as a first class comedian to good dvantage and the other members of the company all work well in the dif-ferent numbers and wear an extensive line of most gorgeous costumes. The twelfth episode of the Exploits of Elaine will be shown again today in two startling reels. This feature runs only two more weeks and the identity of the Clutching Hand will soon be established. The Country Store will again be presented by the Marcus Musical company tomorrow, Friday, night and will no doubt be successful as the one given on Wed-nesday night. On Saturday afternoon special matinee for the children has a special matinee for the children has been arranged for and a bill will be presented that will be particularly at-tractive to them. Although this is the best and biggest musical comedy bill ever presented at this house on a Saturday, there will be no raise in prices and the children will be admitted for 5 cents as usual. On next Monday and Tuesday the banner bill of the Marcus Musical Comedy company's repertoire will be presented and it is a bill espe-cially attractive to the ladles and in which all the costuming is of the very latest design and most modern styles. A big special setting is carried for this show and on Monday afternoon a special ladies' matinee will be given and as an added feature three beautiful presents will be given away, to

As a university president Dr. Butler spiects to this practice of "turning teademical teaching into an exercise n contemporary journalism." Too nany American professors, he thinks, nany American professors, he thinks, give way to this temptation, which is pressed on them by public appeals for their opinions on current topics. "If one be a profound student of Plato he is expected without warning to pass in illuminating critical judgment upon the latest outgiving of Mr. George Bernard Shaw. If he happens to be well rersed in the economic thought of Jermany and Austria he is called upon for an authoritative expression of opinion regarding the strike of coalniners in Colorado." Possibly there are some British as well as American professors who would gain in ultimate reputation by paying heed to Dr. Buter's warning.—Manchester Guardian.

POETRY

AND SO I SING.

I've had my share
Of carking care,
Of fickle fortune's frowns;
I've braced and borne
The cold world's scorn
And had my ups and downs.
Yet I can still
A ditty trill,
Or sing a roundelay,
For, though I bold
No lands nor gold,
My skies are seldom gray.

The stress and strife
Of tollsome life
Have taught me one glad truth—
Not he who must
Crawls in the dust,
But he who will, forsooth!
And so I sing
My soul and fling
My load of care away;
For, though I hold
No lands nor gold,
My skies are seldom gray!

I would not give
A fig to live
A fig to live
Divorced from fret and meil;
The bread I eat
Is rendered sweet
Because of daily toil.
And so I still
A ditty trill,
A blithesome roundelay;
For, though I hold
No lands nor gold,
My skies are seldom gray!

OVER THE HILLS,

Oft when the world and I were younger.
Oh, we are old, so old today,
longed to go over the great hills
yonder Into the world, so far away.
When the years came I met them gladly.
Oh, but they seemed so long to stay,
I hoped that each over the hills would lead me
Into the world, so far away.

Care they brought me, and bitter sor-Long grew the nights, and long the day.

But I dreamed of the path the great hills over.

Into the world, and far away.

"Soon thou shalt seek it," my heart said to me.

"Bide thy time till the happy day;
Thou shalt go wandering the great hills over.

Into the world, and far away." Ah, but still I bide in the valley, Darker the nights and longer the day: And I never shall pass the great hills Into the world, so far away.

Into the world, so far away.

Many a dream had I of its beauty.

The great fair world, so far away,

And many a song I wove about it.

I have forgotten them all today!
